

NCADD Expands Fundraising Capacity & Advances Mission with Greater Presence Online and in Washington, DC

John Magnuson The National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence, Inc. (NCADD) has announced the addition of two new staff focused on expanding NCADD's fundraising capacity and the establishment of the NCADD Center for Public Policy and Advocacy to increase NCADD's physical presence in Washington, DC.

Leading the NCADD Center for Public Policy and Advocacy in Washington will be John Magnuson, Vice President for Policy and Advocacy.

John is a seasoned public policy professional and addiction recovery advocate, experienced in the workings of the Affordable Care Act (ACA) and health care reform initiatives.

NCADD is also very pleased to announce the addition of Jayne Restivo as NCADD's new Director of Development.

Jayne has years of successful national fundraising experience with the March of Dimes, Autism Speaks and The Cooley's Anemia Foundation, along with a personal passion and commitment to recovery for the whole family. Jayne Restivo

To read the full press release, please click here.